NEW DETECTIVE CHIEF HAS VERY STRENUOUS DAY

Arthur McDuffie, the new chief of detectives, had a strenuous day for his first appearance at the police station. He waded right into his new duties and soon had the general routine down to a fine point. The morning was spent principally in getting acquainted. He interviewed all his subordinates and took reports from them as to what was going on.

Part of the afternoon was taken up with interviewing some youngsters who were making a nuisance of themselves. McDuffie knows how to handle a kid as well as he does a man. A small half-Hawaiian boy was toted in for inspection on account of having defaced billboards and writing obscene letterings on those same boards.

The youngster was defiant for some time. He had been caught in the act, but wanted to be tough and threats of being sent to the reform school did not faze him. Suddenly McDuffie caught hold of his hand and asked him what the ring he had on his finger was for. The kid said that his mother gave it to him. "You think enough of your mother to wear her ring but you don't think enough of her to keep away from bad boys," said the new chief. This caught the youngster between wind and water and he broke into a stream of weeping. A good lecture and he went home to behave himself.

The evening was a strenuous time for the new chief. He was away from his office for several hours, just where nobody would say, except to intimate that he was in Pakeville.

He returned to the police station about half-past eleven but went out again immediately and nobody knew again where he had gone. With him went Apana and one or two other detectives and at last accounts they were still on the go.

It is quite evident that Mr. McDuffie has taken a firm hold in his department and that his subordinates respect and like him. A little quiet gossip round the detectives' room went to show that they all think highly of their new chief.

Those who have never climbed to the crater rim and gazed down into it, nor that it has a bed of the richest soil in this part of the island. With water sources tapped and brought to bear upon this fertile tract the crater of Diamond Head would become one of the most beautiful government reservations under the control of the war department.

Pleades' Cargo.

TACOMA, November 27.—The Boston Tow Boat Company's steamer Pleades, under charter to the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, arrived in port yesterday afternoon to load general freight for the Hawaiian Islands.

The Pleades has completed a round voyage from Puget Sound in the triangular service of the American-Hawaiian company touching at Hawaiian Island ports and at San Francisco. She left the Sound October 22 and after a ten-day passage was reported at Honolulu. There she loaded for San Francisco, arriving at the latter port November 18, proceeding two days later to the Sound. The Pleades will have a full cargo when she leaves the Sound the first of the month.

From announcements recently made the American-Hawaiian company is preparing to enter into lively competition with the Matson Navigation Company in the Hawaiian Island service and to improve its large coastwise service. Beginning January 1 the company will improve its New York service and begin in earnest the fight for transportation business from the Atlantic Coast.

Harriman Ships and Chinese.

NEW YORK, November 29.—Coolie crews on Pacific Mail steamships controlled by the Harriman systems and on steamships running from Puget Sound to China, controlled by James J. Hill, will be denounced at the fourth annual convention of the International Seamen's Union of America, which opened in New York today.

Andrew Furuseth of San Francisco, the president, said the union was making a great effort to foster legislation that would prevent the hiring of cheap and inexperienced labor, particularly coolie labor, in the American merchant marine.

"Under existing conditions," he said, "American sailors on the Pacific Coast have to compete with the cheap and lowest type of sailors, Chinese and coolie laborers, who receive from $5 to $8 a month in wages. This is a peril to every one who travels the ocean and lakes."

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $95,000.
